

decades of style

GLASS HOUSE Constructed of steel, stone and abundant glass, a modern retreat on the Magothy River near Annapolis captures a sense of calm. Designed by architect Scarlett Breeding, the house embraces traditional forms—but wall and roof planes have been exchanged for glass. The master bath leads to an outdoor shower and hot tub (pictured) installed in stone. Architecture: Alt Breeding Associates Architecture. Landscape Architecture: Campion Hruby Landscape Architects. Contractor: Pyramid Builders. DAVID BURROUGHS, 2015.

ODE TO PLACE A painstaking renovation honored a storied, 200-year-old Georgetown manse while improving its layout and functionality. Architect Anthony Barnes and interior designer Patrick Sutton also enhanced the home's classical aesthetic; the kitchen (pictured) combines clean lines with traditional elements, featuring custom cabinetry and a penny-tile backsplash. A Baker chandelier hangs above a breakfast table crafted by Mitchell Yanosky. Renovation Architecture: Barnes Vanze. Interior Design: Patrick Sutton. Contractor: Pyramid Builders. MAX KIM-BEE, 2018.